

ROLAND MOORE PRAISES “WONDER, OPTIMISM AND HEART” OF ANDY’S STORY

Roland Moore Monday, December 13, 2010 at 6:28 pm

Hello! I was just listening to your latest interview on Coast-to-Coast AM and revisiting the Gettysburg story. It's seems obvious to me that a film would do so much to publicize your cause and raise general awareness in ways as yet incalculable...

Andy, it's a beautiful story; it deserves to – and must eventually – find its place in the public sensibility. The photo is truly iconic of our times and the two worlds that we live in – secrecy and alleged transparency, hopefully slowly growing together, just as the gentleman on the dais in the background was impressing his inimitable seal on another union – and the wonderful touch of the older you visiting your young self... It's a story with wonder, optimism and heart, like the true spirit of your pioneering country.

I seem to remember that you did mention something about a film in one of your interviews. Anyway, best wishes for all your projects and concerns in the coming year.

With gratitude,

Roland Moore

Andy at Age 5 in 1966

Andy at Age 10 in 1972 at Gettysburg in 1863